What is DevOps Awareness

DevOps is a hot topic in the tech industry! But what exactly is it? Is it just about setting up teams with development and operations staff, or should we focus more on tools? The DevOps Awareness training provides you with a broad overview of DevOps in just one short session. We approach DevOps from various perspectives, covering topics such as Continuous Integration, Continuous Delivery, Continuous Deployment, Culture, Transparency, and getting started with DevOps. We also provide tips for further research through books and websites, and give an overview of commonly used tools.

Who should attend DevOps Awareness

- Software Developers: Learn the importance of collaborating with other roles, in order to get high speed and high quality software delivery.
- Operations Staff: Understand how to collaborate with other roles for high reliability and availability.
- Project Managers and IT Managers: Gain insights into how DevOps can improve delivery timelines and product quality.
- Business Analysts: Understand how you can contribute to getting business and technology working closely together.

Prerequisites

We assume that the participants in the DevOps Awareness training have gained general knowledge of Agile and / or Scrum. Knowledge or experience in the field of system development is not required.

Objectives

At the end of the training, you will be able to:

- Understand what DevOps is and its importance in the tech industry.
- Identify the key practices and tools in a DevOps environment.
